ENDNOTE & ZOTERO MAKE BIBLOGRAPHIES EASIER

"On the house" and "less work" are usually phrases that most college students like to hear. Both apply to EndNote and Zotero, two computer programs that Georgia State students can download from the library to help create bibliographies for papers. Both save hours of work with organizing and formatting citations in Microsoft Word.

EndNote

For help with EndNote, just ask:
Joel Glogowski,
jglogowski@gsu.edu

zotero

For help with Zotero, just ask:
Jason Puckett,
jpuckett@gsu.edu

An EndNote workshop will be available January 20 at 12:30. E-mail jpuckett@gsu.edu to sign up.

RESERVE A GROUP STUDY ROOM

With so many commuting students at Georgia State, sometimes finding a place to study together or work on group projects is difficult. Try meeting at the library! We have 52 group study rooms that can be quickly reserved from our website.

1. Go to www.library.gsu.edu
2. Click STUDY ROOMS (under the Library Services column)
3. Click RESERVE A ROOM
4. Login with your CampusID and your password
5. Click MAKE A RESERVATION NOW

Rooms are available for 3 hours/day per CampusID. Remember, your study group must consist of 2 or more people.

GET REWARDED FOR YOUR GOOD WORK!

The University Library Undergraduate Research Awards recognize Georgia State University undergraduates who demonstrate skill and creativity in the application of library information resources for research papers/projects completed in fulfillment of a course requirement. The application deadline is January 15, 2009.
